A typical American lunch

) Imagine it's lunchtime, and you are hungry. You want something delicious to eat, and you want to make sure that your server brings you food that you like. Here's how to order an American lunch:

(2) If you want to try a classic American meal, ask for a cheeseburger, fries and a soda. A cheeseburger is made with ground beef that is broiled, fried or grilled. Topped with melted cheese and placed on a sliced bun, a cheeseburger may be enhanced with the addition of ketchup, mustard, mayonnaise and pickles.

(3) French fries are made with cut potatoes that are deep-fried to a golden brown color. Great French fries are crispy on the outside and tender on the inside. Most Americans dip the ends of French fries in ketchup before eating them.

(4) Sodas are bubbly beverages that come in a variety of flavors. The most popular American sodas, also known as "soft drinks," are Coca Cola, Pepsi and 7-Up. Root beer and ginger ale are other American soft drinks that are found in most lunch restaurants.

Life on the Space Station

Astronauts on the International Space Station have a busy schedule. Every day they wake up at 7:00 GMT.¹ From 7:00 to 8:00, they wash up and eat breakfast. At 8:00 in the morning, they call Ground Control² in their countries. After they talk to Ground Control, their workday begins. The astronauts don't do the same thing every day. Their schedules change every week.

The astronauts don't work all the time. Each day they exercise for an hour in the morning and an hour in the afternoon. After dinner, they have free time. Then, it's time to go to sleep. Sometimes this isn't easy because the sun rises and sets 16 times each day on the space station.

The astronauts' work doesn't end on Friday. They work a half day on Saturday and all day on Sunday. Astronauts are very busy people.

² Ground Control: People on Earth who work with astronauts in space.

Elephant Keepers

Bill: Wow! This is an interesting article.

Sue: Oh, baby elephants! Look at them! They're so cute! Where are their mothers?

Bill: Hunters killed them.

Sue: That's terrible!

Bill: Yeah, it is. These men are elephant keepers. They work at a place for orphan¹ elephants in Kenya. They feed the baby elephants, take care of them, and even play soccer with them.

Sue: Hmmm. Elephant keeper. That's an interesting job.

Bill: Yes, but it isn't easy. The keepers need to feed the baby elephants every three hours.

Sue: Really? What about at night?

Bill: They need to feed them at night, too. The keepers sleep in buildings with the baby elephants. . . . Listen to this quote from the article. One of the keepers says, "Every three hours you feel a trunk reach up and pull your blankets² off. The elephants are our alarms."

Sue: That's funny. Smart elephants! I want to read that article.

¹ An orphan is a child who has lost both parents.

² People use blankets to keep warm.
